

Mrs. Wineland's Language Arts Class
Classroom Expectations

- Your daily Participation and Effort is required in order to be a success in our classroom.
- Be on time – you and your work – it says a lot about you as a person.
An important part of the education process is learning personal responsibility and self-discipline.
- Your success with classroom participation begins before you enter our classroom. You are expected to bring all necessary materials to class. Permission to go to your locker once class has begun will not be given. Not having materials to accomplish your work and will result in the loss of participation points.
- Your attitude is one thing you can control. Be respectful to me, your classmates, and yourself. You will find this behavior will result in respect toward you from others.

THINK= “I can!”, “I will!”, “I’m going to try!”
and seek help when needed
- Look for ways to positively express your ideas and opinions. Having an “I can do anything if I try!” is half the battle. Moaning, complaining, etc. are not productive ways of communicating.
- Make sure to listen when someone else is sharing.
- Always do quality work – take pride in what you have worked on and hold yourself to a high standard of excellence.
- Putting heads down on desk or closing eyes will be interpreted as sleeping in class and will result in loss of all Participation and Effort points.
- Our room operates on a “B 2 B” Policy (Bell to Bell)! Be in your seat when class begins and wait for me, not the clock, to dismiss class.
